SEARCHLIGHTS illuminate the Olympic Stadium in London during a rehearsal for the opening ceremony on Friday (Saturday morning in Manila). Volunteers who took part in the run-through described the scenery-laden rehearsal as beyond their "wildest expectations."

LONDON—The London Olympics 2012 opening ceremony will be a spine-tingling extravaganza that exceeds expectations, thrilled audience members said after witnessing the final rehearsal on Friday's showpiece spectacle.

And despite their excitement, these lucky enough to get a much-rare view of the rehearsal were not allowed to leave the show's Queen-seating director Danny Boyle pleased with them to see it by giving the green light.

Organizing the Olympics is estimated to cost Britain taxpayers $4.4 billion (the related cost on Page A2.4).

Given volunteers and troops were given tickets to the final run-through as a thank-you for their efforts, while members of the 15,000-strong cast were able to reserve tickets for friends and family.

The 60,000-seat crowd roared with enthusiasm as they flooded out of the Olympic Stadium last Wednesday.

"That was absolutely amazing. I wanted to whoop," said Hilary Midgley from Luton, in northwest England, whose daughter was in the show.

WITH China aggressively asserting its claims in the West Philippine Sea, a lawmaker suggested yesterday that it might be time for the Philippines to ask the United Nations for a peacekeeping force to prevent armed clashes between the two countries in the disputed waters.

Senator Raul R. Sison, chair of the House committee on national defense, raised the question of asking for UN help amid reports that a large fleet of Chinese fishing vessels had been sighted near Pag-asa Island in the Philippine part of the Spratly archipelago.

The military's Western Command confirmed the sighting on Wednesday, and the Navy said yesterday that it had reached out to stop the Chinese fishing fleet from entering Philippine territory.

"We will assert our sovereignty in that area because that's our territory," Commodore Ramon Bala, commander of the military's Naval Forces West, said reporters from an interview yesterday.

But President Aquino called for calm, saying the government was looking for a potential resolution of the Philippine territorial dispute with China.

Reporters asked Mr. Aquino point-blank if the Philippines was ready for war?

"We are always ready," he replied, but quickly added that his government stressed the need for a peaceful resolution of the conflict.

Mr. Aquino answered reporters' questions on the ability to defend the Philippines.

THERE is no better time than now to push for Charter change because the President and the leaders of Congress enjoy the trust of the people, House Minority Leader Nene Duterte said Tuesday.

Constitution scholar Ben Hable said his comments are justified in view with the President on Monday to assure him that Congress has no other intention in pushing for Charter change than to amend the economic provisions of the Constitution.

According to Duterte, the trust enjoyed by the country's executive and legislative leaders could be blamed in Duterte's Court, a situation which is not expected to be seen in a long time.

He said the country has a President who is inspired by the people to have no political agenda, a House President (Juan Ponce Enrile) that has no knowledge of becoming Prime Minister and a House Speaker (Feliciano Belmonte) that is also believed to have no such intention.

"The key for the success of Cha-cha is dependent on the three political leaders," he said yesterday.

Earlier efforts to amend the Constitution had been met with opposition because of public suspicion that members of Congress are undertaking the exercise to extend their tenure in office.

This time, Duterte's supporters are saying the push for Charter change would only involve adding the phrase "senior officer" to the word "senior" in the Constitution.

Other proposed changes would have to go through the legislative will and would have to have the President's approval.

To further show that Congress has no other intention other than amending on the economic provisions, Duterte said the House and the Senate could pass economic reform legislation today as well.

In troubled world, Games bind political wounds

LONDON... Two days from the start of the Olympics, British Prime Minister Tony Blair has defended his decision to deliver the Games to London, maintaining that the event will be value for money as money has other public projects.

Blair helped to deliver the world's biggest sporting showpiece to London in 2005, handing Britain with a bill totaling £14.4 billion ($22 billion) for a project expected to last as the economy still is not held after he left office in 2007.

"Over the years it's a lot of money, we have represented a whole part of the last half of London," Blair said on Wednesday in an interview with The Associated Press.

He pointed to the "great sporting heritage" of the place, and "the energy of the Olympic spirit" as reasons to stand in motion.

"If you want to open the gates in Chelsea (London's Park in Madrid or New York), 'What you prefer to be putting on the Olympics right now? I'm sure they would be 'Yes,' he said.

On seeing the Olympics in

A 100-member Czech Olympic team takes a group photo while waiting past a large of the London Olympics. Over 14,000 athletes from some 220 countries are competing in the Summer Games that will last until Aug. 12.

2008, a then-prosperous Britain produced it would cost £14 billion pounds. But since then, the country has plunged into recession, and costs have spiraled as a former east London industrial area was turned into a 556-hectare sports park with the Olympic Stadium at its heart.

Blair said when he left government after a decade in power in 2007, the economy was strong and unemployment was low. "But the financial crisis, everything looks darker and tougher for Britain," he said. "The question is how we get out of it."

Blair—appearing at a conference in London organized by British Sport, a group that now aims to promote social development—described the Games as "an opportunity to showcase modern Britain, modern London" in the world. "We'll be a great opportunity for us, which I'm sure we will seize with both hands."

He also described the Games as a rare opportunity to communicate with troubled nations.

"It's really hard to think of another event, like the Olympics, that can bring people together—even if they're not the most political political disagreements and even if their countries are going through troubled," said Blair, who serves as special envoy for the Queen on the Middle East, a diplomatic post-involvement.

He highlighted the participation of female Saudi athletes for the first time, alongside Israeli and people from all over the Middle East.

The Olympics is "a fantastic exhibition of the fact that it is possible for sport to bring people together in a way that nothing else does," he said.

Sport builds legacy

Blair said that the opportunity to meet not be squandered to use the Games to transform lives beyond the Olympic Park.

"The important thing for us... is to use the Olympics to build a legacy in the country," Blair said. "And that legacy has got to be around sport. If you can do, how it can change people's lives because I think sport for me is a really important part of modern policy."

"It's a great anti-drug policy, social policy, education policy, health policy—it's not just about the pleasure of playing sport."

the war demand and I was just about able to pick her out. It was beyond my wildest expectations."

"I would have spotted it but as I had we already knew what war is it so we're not going to sit anybody. Anyone who does should be ashamed of themselves," Mulgrew said.

"My daughter's been watching since the beginning of May we know how many hours she's got in and it would just spoil anybody's hard work."

The theme of the $42-million spectacle is "Cities of Tomorrow," inspired by a poem from William Shakespeare's play "The Tempest." The show is set to be watched by a vast global television audience.

Reynolds, who was an Academy Award for directing "Gladiator" and "Millions"—and his team, have explained their goal was to be the spectacle.

"Diversity, inventiveness. Fellow Olympians Stephen Doherty, the Games committee creative director, revealed the show championed "the rich heritage, diversity, energy, inventiveness, wit and creativity that truly define the British Isles."

It is "a journey which will celebrate who we are, who we were and who we wish to be."

But there are some bits of it that are so new they did not even appear in the final dress rehearsal.

Offie Wright, 27, from Christchurch in New Zealand, who's returning to the modern position, was among those who were in.

"Very British way"

"There are lots of different things to show that triggered memories. It was quite exciting at times," Wright told Agence France Press.

"Every time they have a Games they try and bring it up to get better and better, and looking back, 2008, they're doing that a very British way," he added.

"It's hard to tell what the final product's going to be because there was quite a bit we weren't shown."

"But if the friends ask me what's in it, I'll just be through my mouth."

"Amazing"

A group of Royal Navy personnel from the HMS Bulwark, who are guarding the sailing venue on the southern English coast, were released from duty in ahead before being in head.

"We won't see anything else for the next three weeks, so it's really good that we've had this opportunity," said one sailor known by the nickname "Wombat."

"I think five hours in the car to get here but it was definitely worth the effort," he said.

His colleague, sharing on the phone to his wife, told her: "You work amazing."

"My sister has started every single group posting that show on," he added.

"If you don't mind it, I will about you! Seriously—amazing!" Reports from AFP and AP

● The government's Conditional Cash Transfer (CCT) program is laudable. The measure is to directly address poverty by making it easier for the poorest households to have access to primary education, healthcare services, etc. Of course, there are limitations and challenges for a family to remain a beneficiary of the program. The important question is what will happen to those who could not comply for one reason or another, with any of the conditions or requirements? I suggest that the Department of Social Welfare and Development find an alternative solution to fully realize the objectives of the program. Alternatives have been reported regarding the exclusion of beneficiaries—families out of state, with families of government and OFWD employees, overstayed program coverage.

● The inclusion of the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA) is to prevent overseas Filipino workers from any form of abuse, but the existing limited protection given to OFWDs to assist in their dilemmas who are deprived of proper parental care during their absence from home. It is to be noted that children raised for a life insurance for nearly nothing in the morning. It is also suggested that the POEA provide the necessary guidance for their children.

Colt. Ramon Faggus, chief of the Joint Special Operations Task Force Rambo, said the clash took place in the southern area in an ongoing operation against the hostile group that has been harassing and threatening rubber plantation workers belonging to the Funderberg Agrarian Union Beneficiaries Association Development Cooperative Inc. (Funderb).

On Wednesday, almost 2000 filed in an orderly march, most wearing T-shirts with "I am a human" on them, in Pansodong, a village in Hunan where the rubber plantations are.

Tyngs said one soldier even threatened to shoot upon and wounded when the clerk turned out to be a man.

CHR starts probe of allegations of abuses by Vizcaya mine firm

MANILA, July 26 (PNA)—The Commission on Human Rights (CHR) on Tuesday began investigating allegations of human rights abuses attributed to an Australian company that is planning to start large-scale mining in the remote village of Buisan in Oriental Samar, about 40 km from here.

Loreto Anton Diaz, CHR special investigations officer, said the agency will ask the Philippine National Police to enforce protection measures in Buisan, and reports that they have been harassing residents who tried to give up their lands to make way for the world-class open-pit copper and gold mine.

"The issue pending among the mine-planners right now is the residents' insistence on getting back their lands because of these reports of the use of force and intimidation," said CHR head of the three-member team that met with members of the Buisan Residents Association last week.

Greg Perkins, PCF senior manager, led the visit of former safety adviser "PCF is compliant with all laws and regulations of the Philippines. PCF is committed to building strong relationships with the community and is involved with a variety of social and community and humanitarian projects, including health, education, information and infrastructure projects," Perkins said.

PCF is one of two foreign companies in Samar Province that were granted a financial and industrial assistance agreement by the government.

A mine to exploit mineral resources with an area of 5,855 hectares in Buisan, with a declared budget of about 1.29 billion pesos, is planned.

At current prices, the Buisan deposit is estimated to be worth P2.4 billion of gold. For the project has encountered opposition from residents, many of whom have lived in small-scale mining communities.

Davao radio station workers end strike

DAVAO CITY—Workers of one of the country's largest radio networks have ended a strike that had crippled the operations of one of the network's stations here and forced its owners to operate under an emergency.

Workers and representatives of management signed a new collective bargaining agreement (CBA) late last Wednesday after an agreement that lay out the terms of the deal.

"We will show management that we are the most productive in the company," said Roy Nino, head of BIRN-Davao City chapter.

"For this to be an agreement in all with it media workers in other media and radio networks. Once you unite to correct an injustice, there are chances that you will win," he said.

Workers turned on both the station's FM and AM channels at 7 a.m. on Thursday.

Los Angeles-based radio station manager, BIRN, is a member of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), but it is not a union. Under the new CBA, BIRN management promised workers a P40,000 daily wage increase, or an increase in their monthly pay of P1,000 a month for P1,300 a month next year, one month of raise a year, a signing bonus of P3,000 and a fully paid vacation. General Manager, Gregory M. Mironov.

"They just said the land is now owned by the company..."

which, they said, have provided them livelihood since the 1970s.

In a letter to CHR last week, the residents said the company should not start mining until the company can prove that the land is now owned by the company.

"We are not sure that PCF will be able to influence the situation of the mine, they are just a company that is planning to start mining in the area and we are small-scale miners," the residents said.

During the first meeting, Loreto Anton Diaz said CHR should investigate reports that the Buisan residents' complaints have been ignored by some local officials.

Residents accused how PCF personnel, accompanied by armed security guards and police, have been allegedly harassing residents who are negotiating with the company.

"There was a time when PCF guards and police came to the village and threatened the people, without showing any document. They just said the land is now owned by the company," said Jonathan Mironov, a community leader.

"Almost everything that we do now, we need to ask permission from the company. They are not going to let us go through the mine without first having to go through the mine and guard company of PCF," he said.

Mironov said, Jonathan Mironov said.

DAMASCUS—Syrian troops and rebels seek reinforcements to the intensifying battle in the second city Aleppo, as the US said fresh defections from the regime showed President Bashar al Assad's "days are numbered."

Charles Lippard Wednesday in Aleppo's central Al-Jamaliya neighborhood, near the local headquarters of the ruling Assad party in Damascus in the south of the city, rebels set a police station ablaze, the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said.

Rebels' gunshots rattled several neighborhoods of the commercial capital, causing chaos and injuries, according to the British-based watchdog group.

A rebel spokesman told Agency France Presse the Aleppo shot a "large number" of troops have been moved from the southwestern province of Idlib to Aleppo.

A by the newspaper journalist confirmed that the rebels were also reinforcing. United Nations, however, said that the Assad regime said to have said that Syria's oil and gas fields are a significant reduction in oil, the remaining 120 US oil reserves would survive on the expiry of the "final" 30-day extension of the regime's mandate, signed by the Security Council in July 2011.

As the violence increases, high-level decisions from Assad's regime are growing.

The United States on Wednesday also issued the defections of two more senior Syrian diplomats, the ambassador in the United Arab Emirates and Egypt.

When House speaker, Jay Carney said reporters should be sure to note that the Assad regime said "these defections are a reminder that the last time a meeting will end of the regime. It is a warning and leaving its grip on power" (US said that Assad, in thanks to visit the site of the Damascus massacre in 1995, told the parliament that the "the international community is being misled in Syria." The juxtaposition of the country and what is happening in Syria was clear.

"It makes a plea to the world to see the... the now to stop the slaughter in Syria," Ben said. "The regime is dividing. An unbroken divide to civil war. Growing resistance in Aleppo and children's hospitals." When House speaker, Carney confirmed the use of attack helicopters as "another indication of the depth of depravity" of Assad's regime.

Meanwhile, aiming to repair the diplomatic initiative, Russia's UN ambassador Vitaly Churkin said Moscow was ready to hear talks between the warring sides.

"We are ready to give the opposition and the government a deadline to find a way to stop the fighting to unify the opposition and the opposition with the government," he said.

Russia's Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said that the United States for backing the armed opposition, saying a US failure to condemn the July 22 bombing that killed four top Syrian security officials meant it was playing tennis.

Alexis Tsipras, foreign ministry spokesman said a new version of UN Security Council resolution 1816, which allows for the imposition of arms and places suspected of carrying arms to Syria, announced to be sent to the UN Security Council on whether it was too late which would mean it was too late.

Russia has proposed in January and last week, veto China, passed a Council resolution on Syria for the third time in the course of weeks' success.

The United States, Russia, France and Germany have said they will seek action against the Syrian government outside the council. All have rejected providing with any arms the opposition, however.

The British Joint Syrian Observatory of the reported clashes in the Al-Hajj Al-Awad district of Damascus, one of the last remaining rebel-held areas after 19 days of fighting in the capital.

PSE trades lower ahead of rate decision

THE LOCAL stock index traded slightly higher on Thursday ahead of the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas' policy rate setting meeting. The main index Philippine Stock Exchange index closed at 9,244 points or 0.13 percent higher at 5:02:56 on Friday. This developed on the market awaited confirmation of the rate cut that was joined in by investors ahead of the meeting of the BSP's Monetary Board.

After the market closed, the BSP did cut the key interest rate by 25 basis points to a record low of 3.75 percent.

By Michelle V. Borne

THE BANGKO Sentral ng Pilipinas yesterday slashed its key policy rates, bringing them to new lows, in a bid to prevent inflation from falling below target levels.

Although authorities felt it was not the moment to also start re-empowering the appreciation of the peso, which was being tested by foreign funds' appetite for peso-denominated securities.

The central bank's overnight borrowing and lending rates, which influence commercial lending rates, were cut by 25 basis points to 3.75 and 3.75 percent, respectively.

Lower interest rates are expected to spur demand for loans which, in turn, could help boost purchases of goods and services. Higher demand, if supply remains constant, will help accelerate inflation.

The BSP said preventing the consumer price index from falling below target was as important as the currency's strengthening a higher than target inflation. Depending on inflation, a very low inflation rate can be just as bad for business as high inflation, according to economists.

The authorities expect for this year and next year with cut a range of 3 to 3.5 percent. Monetary officials believe inflation target could keep

Six-month budget deficit narrows to P34.5B

By Rosalyn M. Domingo

THE GOVERNMENT posted a budget deficit of P70.3 billion in the first semester as the growth of expenses out of revenues continued at double digits, although it will be short of targets in the six months to June, the government claims—defined as its spending less than revenue collected—was just about a third of the programmed P200.5 billion. It was, however, twice the P17.23 billion recorded in the same period last year.

The treasury-bank reported P70.3 billion, which was just 60 percent of the program's 120.8 percent higher year-on-year.

In a briefing, Budget Secretary Francisco S. Duque said the rise largely due to disbursements for infrastructure and other capital outlay, which grew by 66.1 percent year-on-year, as well as maintenance and other operating expenses, which rose by 41.1 percent.

"We are committed not only to sustain our current infrastructure performance but also to further accelerate public spending and the delivery of major social and economic services," Duque said.

Suntrust Capitol Plaza

By Matthew Allen

For the first time in its history, Suntrust Capital Plaza is undergoing a major renovation. The $100-million project, which is being completed in three phases, will transform the 25-story building into a modern office space. The first phase, which is currently under way, will involve the renovation of the building's exterior and the installation of new windows.

The second phase, which is scheduled to begin in the fall, will involve the renovation of the building's interior. The third phase, which is scheduled to begin in the spring of 2000, will involve the renovation of the building's mechanical systems.

The renovation project is being managed by the Atlanta-based firm of Skidmore, Owings & Merrill. The firm is also responsible for the design of the building's new exterior. The new exterior will feature a glass curtain wall, which will give the building a more modern appearance.

The renovation project is also expected to create 100 new jobs. The jobs will be created by the construction and renovation work. The jobs will be spread throughout the city of Atlanta.

One Motive Force

PLDT now powers the MOA Arena

Impressive even at rest, the MOA Arena is nothing short of spectacular in the bright bay-side daylight. An unmistakable architectural derivative of Beijing Bird's Nest, it is all high-tech roofs and windows made with a recent exclusive deal with PLDT now making it one of the most hyper-connected modern venues in the world.

Opened only last June 16, 2012, the MOA Arena has a seating capacity of 36,000 sports fans, a full lounge capacity of 20,000, and a car park facility that can accommodate 2,000 vehicles. All these patrons will be served with security and connectivity solutions care of the PLDT Group.

SM Prime Holdings President Hans T. Sy cited the brand alliance as a fulfillment of shared goals of both the SM and PLDT group of companies.

For all its revolving years of solid commitment to product-building and good service, both PLDT and the SM Group of Companies have one true love—the Filipino. For over 80 years, PLDT—leading telecommunications provider in the country—has bridged lives, fostered communities and, in the process, cultivated an interconnected nation geared towards abiding economic evolution," he said.

Under the 3-year branding partnership, Mall of Asia Arena grants exclusive branding rights to the PLDT group. Included are PLDT mobile and electronic exhibition banners encompassing the arena, three PLDT corporate websites, and two showrooms that already showcase PLDT SME Nation and PLDT HCMC. More electronic multimedia channels within Mall of Asia will feature the branded phone "Mall of Asia Arena Powered by PLDT."

PLDT and SMART President and CEO Napoleon L. Nazzari, commenting on an already existing branding deal with SMART Anawake Coliseum said, "We are maximizing brand exposure for PLDT as a whole. This is part of a serious coordinated branding effort and is just another branding for the entire PLDT group."

PLDT Vice President and Head of ALPWA Enterprise Jovy Hernandez lauded the deal for its value in fostering more direct relationships between PLDT and its customers. "We were quicker to move on this initiative," he stressed. "Both SM and PLDT are complementary to each other. We saw the obvious value in this partnership and we pursued it all the way to this historic day."

For his part, PLDT and SMART Chairman Manuel V. Pangilinan defined the new partnership with SM as a gateway of new opportunities for the company. To pursue the advocacies close to our heart: Our love for sports, our strong support for Philippine sports, and our partners."

"This is certainly another milestone for the PLDT Group and we are truly proud to be associated with this state-of-the-art venue," he added, pointing out that MOA Arena would "take PLDT's commitment to the next level."

PLDT ALPWA Enterprise is proud to be the longest of "work-life partners" in creating their clients with technology and service so that they don't need to spend their lives chasing to be office rats. Recognizing the importance of service and care in a world where service is the key to success, PLDT ALPWA has taken on the responsibility of MOA Arena, which helps them provide better quality entertainment to the Philippine people.

The PLDT ALPWA suite is MOA Arena's luxurious, well-appointed lounge with private restrooms and lounge seating of contemporary design. The suite also has a new construction plan to enhance and PLDT ALPWA commitment to spend their together, helping to spread their corporate citizenship in a natural, friendly way.

The biggest moment came the night of PLDT and SM's historic day.

A quest for relevance, a drive to grow

The Philippine stock market, now 85 years old, continues to evolve and strengthen its role as a major growth engine of the nation's economy

By Mark D. Solares

THROUGHOUT the years, the Philippine Stock Exchange continues to adapt and change to the realities and demands of the market. PSE has gone through many colorful and controversial changes, and yet it remains as one of the most credible institutions in the country.

The first office in Asia after Japan and India, PSE is a product of a union between the Manila Stock Exchange and the Makati Stock Exchange in December 1993. But it was in 1927 when trading began in the Philippines through the Manila Stock Exchange and later in 1963 another exchange was organized under the Makati Stock Exchange. The unification of the PSE was inevitable and was meant to lay track the development of the capital markets in the country.

According to these facts, PSE President and Chief Executive Officer, one of the biggest concerned organizations at PSE is the recent joint creation of the Capital Markets Integrity Corp. (CMIC), an independent body, it directly monitors and regulates brokers, dealers, or trading participants. CMIC is headed by its Chairman, Jose Luis Zorilla and President and CEO Antonio Sison, Jr.

In February this year, CMIC was given a professional self-regulatory organization (SRO) status or the badge to operate as the independent audit, surveillance, and compliance with the PSE.

"This is one of the immediate solutions for the investor market in terms of enhancing the corporate governance system for market regulation," Sison said in earlier interview. "This positive development will also allow the PSE to focus on market and product development."

Better infrastructure, stronger monitoring. And as one of its initial projects, CMIC signed an agreement with the Korea Exchange for the acquisition as well as the implementation of a surveillance system that will monitor its trading activities.

PSE has achieved significant developments in 20 years. During the time of former President Fidel Ramos, PSE secured self-regulatory organization status.

"Change is quite difficult," said Jose Luis Zorilla, PSE Chairman. "In any enterprise, making in place change is a challenge. But with reason we must cope, and then we achieve these challenges."

At the advent of the 21st century, PSE became more aggressive in adapting with the times. It is a process of making it more accessible to the public. PSE in 2001 devalued itself or transformed from a non-stock, member-governed entity into a stock, shareholder-based organization.

PSE has grown dramatically, recording 204 listed firms this year.

"If you look at where we are today, our volume has increased to 49 billion since 1993," said Sison. "The Exchange has gone to a larger market capitalization of all the companies. This year, we are close to P30 trillion in market capitalization."

Last year was probably the most active for PSE. It established a satellite office in Cebu and launched a market education page online called PSE Academy that served as an educational platform for the public to download and learn from instructional materials on stock market investing.

This helped encourage students and ordinary individuals to look at the advantages of investing in the stock market.

More than the physical structures and facilities, PSE has expanded and enhanced its presence in the economic system by constantly adapting, evolving to robust, and improving the trading system.

The unified stock market is helping its firms from all three changes, and the country has emerged as the biggest volume, meaning in the stock market being a huge contributor to boosting the health of the economy.

In July this year, the PSE index reached its highest all-time high of 5,300.98 after rising the 3,800 points in March. The Philippines is now regarded as among the fastest growing nations, and the stock market is riding high.

LONDON 2012: The greatest show on earth begins

By: Stephen Little

Over the last 70 days, 6,000 inspirational men, women and children have been carrying the Olympic flame around the length and breadth of Great Britain. And every day of the way, thousands of people have come out to watch and welcome the torch to their towns or villages.

The anticipation has been building as teams from all over the globe have arrived in the UK and moved into the Athletes' Village ready for their final preparations.

Right now, as the Olympic torch makes its way to the stadium for the Opening Ceremony of the London 2012 Games, millions of citizens are cheering the torchbearers in thousands of towns in the Philippines and around the world. The moment is final here where the Games will begin. And our whole country is ready to welcome the world.

Hosting the Games is a massive undertaking, equivalent to staging 44 international world championships over just a few

AMBASSADOR/Enriquez, who welcomed Filipino athletes to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games

The greatest show on earth begins events, that starts winning the bid in 2005 we have been working incredibly hard to get the Olympic ready.

Our new Olympic Park was delivered on time and on budget. The transport infrastructure has been upgraded. And the medals are being held safe in the custody of the Tower of London until they're needed for the victory ceremonies.

The 75-day work relay covers 8,000 miles with an average of 110 Britishers taking part each day, each carrying the flame for around 300 metres. I personally met two of the pilgrims from Britain before they left for the UK, and I was delighted to hear their inspirational stories about helping and leaving their communities.

When you watch early morning sunrise, we are confident you will like what you see. A run down suburban site in East London has been transformed into a shining new landscape, home of the new sports venue stand under a beautiful Olympic Park that will deliver an environmental legacy for years to come. And volunteers from across the country have offered their time to give advice and assistance about the myriad of activities.

The Olympic Games are tomorrow morning will include a raft of thousands including Filipino fans. Considering, one of the British Embassy's Chevening scholars who is pursuing his MSc at the University of Westminster. The economy will capture many of the characteristics that make Britain unique, but also embrace our openness and global perspectives.

Of course, the real focus of the Games is the cooperation itself, athletes are at the heart of our Games and our focus has been on building the best possible stage on which they can shine. As host country, we have high hopes for Team GB, which aims to build on its outstanding success in Beijing and win more medals than ever before. As an Olympic Ambassador to the Philippines, I encourage the Philippine government to encourage the athletes who will be the Games where a Filipino athlete brings home the country's first gold medal. Certainly, there will be plenty of fans to cheer on the Philippine team. London is the most cosmopolitan city in the world, home to communities from each of the four major religions.

We are also very proud that we have met the positive we made in response to inspire young people all over the world to choose sport. Our international inspiration programme is now working in 20 countries around the world, reaching the lives of more than 12 million young people. Here in the Philippines, the British Council is collaborating with the Philippine Olympic Committee, Philippine Sports Commission and MVP Sports Foundation to send 11 Philippine athletes to a two-week training school programme at its facilities in London. The students, aged 14 to 15, will have a chance to watch some of the Olympic events while in the UK.

This summer London becomes the first city ever to host the Olympic Games three times. From now we have toward the future, it has left a permanent impression both on our country and on the Olympic movement. And we hope to make history again by creating the first, positive legacy Games' where what happens after the Games is planned alongside the event itself, leaving behind lasting sporting, social and economic benefits for the whole country.

London 2012 is all the more special for us as it brings the Paralympic Games home for the first time to the birthplace of the Paralympic movement. Building on the spirit of Stoke Mandeville Hospital, where it all began back in 1948, these Games will make a difference to disabled people around the world, by changing attitudes, improving access and opening up new opportunities across sport, culture and business.

As we wait for the curtain to rise on the Opening Ceremony, we want the momentum of London 2012 to last a lifetime, and for this shared excitement to create a lasting friendship with our country. It is time for the greatest show on earth to begin. Stephen Lillie is the British Ambassador to the Philippines.

THE BRITISH Embassy Manila joined the world-wide celebration of the Olympic flame by holding a special torchlight torchbearer debut 'I'm Out for Football'. The event was held at 10 pm at the largest free sports complex in Easton, where City 118 play on representing stakeholders sharing pride in the power of sport as a unifying force.

FACTS ABOUT THE LONDON 2012 GAMES:

THE LONDON 2012 Olympic Games will take place from 27 July to 12 August, featuring 26 sports with 29 disciplines.

The London 2012 Paralympic Games will take place from 29 August to 9 September, featuring 20 sports with 20 disciplines.

The greenest Games ever!

London 2012 will be the first truly 'green' Olympics, featuring sustainable design and innovation in the construction of the Olympic Park.

London 2012 is helping to create one of the most deprived parts of Europe with 75p to every £1 spent on the development of the Olympic Park going towards the regeneration of East London.

The Olympic Park sports venue will be at least 40 per cent less than most modern buildings through innovative such as recycling rain water to create the toilet.

Over 100 tonnes of new parkland are being created in the biggest new urban park built for more than a century. This includes 100,000 plants and 2,000 trees in total.

During construction, almost 90 per cent of the material was recycled or re-used in the creation of the Olympic Park. In one of the biggest reuse operations of its kind, the OGA is re-using and re-using hundreds of thousands of tonnes of soil which would otherwise have to be transported off site.

Over 500,000 materials have been removed by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) and installed by its contractors, severely reducing the on-site construction materials of both delivery by road.

Over 20 million gallons of contaminated groundwater were treated using innovative techniques, including, filtering, evaporating into the ground, generating energy to heat down harmful chemicals.

The most accessible Games ever:

London 2012 is the first Games where the planning and construction of the Olympics and Paralympics has been fully integrated. Disability access has been incorporated into the design and structure of the buildings, open spaces and public transport for 2012. Everything has been done to ensure that disability is a priority.

London 2012 will be the most accessible Games ever for athletes and spectators. This platform has been built on a low floor and has wheelchair accessible and all other parts have ramps. Over 4,200 London buses have been fitted with the new blue system, an automatic ticket and valid passenger display system, which helps the visually impaired and those with autism with London.

London Marathon Trust has funded the design of a running path for the newly finished section of the Aquatics at the Paralympics in 2012. This innovative design will be able to modify the path to meet the needs of the athletes.

Accessibility has been incorporated into all new London planning developments, for example the improved Oxford Circus crossing in London's busiest shopping street.

All London buses and Metro cars as well as the Thames Clippers and London Light Railways are fully accessible.

The quest for Olympic gold continues with Powerade ION4®

As the official hydration partner of the 2012 Olympic athletes, Powerade ION4® is thrust in the middle of the action as the drink of choice for outstanding individuals pursuing their Olympic dreams.

The Philippines has yet to secure a gold in the Olympic Games' history, but despite the odds, our belief remains undoubted. Three of them are standing on the spotlight: boxer phenom Mark Bangers, long jump extraordinaire Marcellito Maresello, and water polo player Brian Rosendo.

Inspired by the country's countless boxing icons, 18-year-old Mark Bangers has secured gold at the Palawan Remembrance National Open, and Sydney Jackson Memorial. Hailing from Panabo City, Mark is one of our brightest hopes for the country's first-ever Olympic gold medal.

Nagres Oriental native Marcellito Maresello is a national team standout for long jump competitions. After his stint in the Southeast Asian Games, Asian Games, IAAF World Indoor Championships, and Asian Athletics Association Championships. Marcellito's sights are set on a return to the Olympics, ready to bank on his 2008 Beijing experience.

Ready to take his shot at the gold medal is short shooter Brian Rosendo. Banging into the competition as a wildcard representative, Brian is nonetheless accomplished with wins from the Southeast Asian Games and SEASEA Championships.

Powerade ION4® believes in the ability of every individual. It replenishes your body with 4 ions [Sodium, Potassium, Calcium, and Magnesium] in the exact same ratio typically lost in sweat. It does not just satisfy your thirst, it allows you to break through when you are about to break down. As the world witnesses the Olympics, you will see Powerade ION4® powering the Olympic spirit.

SHOW YOUR SUPPORT FOR TEAM PHILIPPINES

TV5 armed and ready to bring Olympics to PH households

By Jasmine W. Pags

THE MORNINGS biggest sporting spectacle gets a local twist here.

Spotted, the sports arm of TV5, plans to bring more than just the anticipated coverage of the US basketball "Dream Team" as it also aims to broadcast the Philippine Team's glory bid in the 2012 London Olympics.

"We have local correspondents who will deliver inside stories of the Philippine Team," said Vince Lantua, the TV sports manager of Spotted.

"They'll deliver interesting and sights of our athletes, the Filipino commentary, the Filipino working in the Olympics. All the sights and sounds of the event."

Viewers can get access to the 20 Olympic disciplines in several Spotted platforms, including TV5, MOV+ on IRC 13, Atrios TV 41 and Hyper.

The Olympic opening ceremony will be broadcast live this Sunday at 5:30 a.m. (Manila time) on TV5.

Basketball will be aired on TV5 along with swimming and diving, while other sports like tennis, volleyball, gymnastics and badminton will be featured on Atrios TV.

"The coverage of the Philippine Team will be important and crucial, but it won't be limited to that," said Lantua. "We'll air the Dream Team games. We'll air the basketball games live, as many as we can."

The US basketball squad will feature Los Angeles Lakers star Kobe Bryant, LeBron James of newly crowned NBA champion Miami Heat and Oklahoma Thunder sensation Kevin Durant. TV5 will follow the squad closely as it tries to defeat the basketball team. The US is expected to reach the final 12-5.

Sportswomen and actor Derek Ramsay and his crew lead the broadcast crew of Spotted, the Olympics exclusive Philippine two TV broadcast.

"There are several platforms to choose from to catch the Olympics, depending on the events you're interested in," said Lantua.

Among the sports and personalities that TV 5 will bring to Philippine households include swimming, which features American star Michael Phelps and the marathon triathlete Steve Moniz, and track and field, which will be highlighted by American Union Spain's quest to defend his crown.

But the main focus will still be to make sure that Filipino get a chance to watch their compatriots perform.

Weightlifter Vildan Oez will carry the Philippine flag in the opening fire to lead the 11 member national team composed of boxer Blah Anthony Berripa, long jumper Maconella Torres, long distance runner Rene Adriano, shooter Brian Rancito, archer Blah Javier and Rachel Rose Cabral, swimmer Justine Mithiah and Juan Roldan Lacuna, judoka Benchesko Makindang and mixed martial arts Colang.

"Our aim is to deliver the most comprehensive coverage of the Olympics in the country," said Lantua.

Meet Team PH's Magnificent 11

By Ted S. Hernandez and Joan Harnery

Tag team is the Magnificent 11 or the Lucky Eleven, whatever. The largest group of athletes would go by any name as it is difficult to compete against the best in standard's grander, biggest sporting spectacles.

In the end, tonight after a summer, the list of 21 Filipino athletes plunger into action in the quadrennial Games of the 2012 Summer Olympics, an London primarily sports moment.
 The list of 21 athletes, what is it or part of the lower levels of Philippine Olympic—various of international Olympic qualification, mostly country events, or national level and elite.

of them stands a chance of finding a medal against such a homegrown collection of world-class sportsmen.

All we know is they are in the Olympics for a reason: it is to represent themselves and make their country proud. It is difficult to say who will be the best in the world in the end, but we know that they are in the Olympics for a reason: it is to represent themselves and make their country proud.

The will be the athletes by which the performance of the Philippines in the Olympics will be judged. The athletes will be the Philippines' pride and joy, and they will be the athletes by which the performance of the Philippines in the Olympics will be judged.

Why I can swear by Shanghaiese pedicure

Handed down through generations, it uses centuries-old Chinese medical techniques learned by master pedicurists

Meja Ochoa-Cu

BEST OF CLASS

EVERYONE has heard of the famous Chinese pedicure. But they are the ones who are still doing it the old-fashioned way. The pedicurists are the ones who are still doing it the old-fashioned way.

The interior is a mix of traditional Chinese and modern. There are wooden chairs, tables, and a large mirror. The pedicurists are the ones who are still doing it the old-fashioned way.

You'll never have to wash these jeans in your life

Called the "Hemlock of jeans," they're a cult sensation. Pop them in the freezer instead to kill bacteria

By Christine V. Perez

NEVER—ever—having to wash your jeans now sounds like a hellish idea, to the many who in the last years' desire to wash their only jeans—just—no more a week or more. But if you are fast yourself, capitalizing on a pair of jeans with denim jeans, pop them in the freezer to kill bacteria, yes, instead of washing, you will need to wash your jeans in the freezer.

I thought I heard wrong when Christine Perez, the store manager of the jeans store, told me that she had a trick to keep jeans from getting old.

EVERYBODY LOVES A HAPPY ENDING.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week resistance training program on the muscle strength and endurance of young adults. The subjects were 20 young adults (10 males and 10 females) who were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group performed no resistance training, while the experimental group performed a 12-week resistance training program. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly greater muscle strength and endurance than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week resistance training program can improve muscle strength and endurance in young adults.

Serums that work, and makeup that stays on all day

There's a lot of hype around serums, but not all of them are created equal. Some are just water with a fancy name, while others are packed with powerful ingredients that can actually improve your skin. Here are some of the best serums on the market right now, and how to use them for maximum benefit.

Hydration is key. If your skin is dry, it's more likely to develop fine lines and wrinkles. A good serum should contain hyaluronic acid, which can hold up to 1,000 times its weight in water. This helps to plump up the skin, making it look smoother and more youthful.

Look for antioxidants. Free radicals are tiny molecules that can damage your skin's DNA, leading to premature aging. Serums containing antioxidants like vitamin C and E can help neutralize these harmful molecules, protecting your skin from environmental damage.

Don't forget about retinol. This powerful ingredient can help to stimulate collagen production, which can help to reduce the appearance of wrinkles and fine lines. However, it's important to use it correctly, as it can be irritating if overused.

How to use serum. Apply a small amount of serum to your face, gently massaging it into your skin. You can use it morning and night, or just at night if you're using retinol. Always follow up with a moisturizer to lock in the hydration.

Don't overdo it. While serums are great, too much can be bad. Stick to a simple routine with a few key products, and you'll see the best results.

Choose your ingredients wisely. Not all serums are created equal. Look for products with high-quality ingredients and a good reputation. Reading reviews can be helpful here.

Be consistent. Skincare is a long-term commitment. Stick to your routine, and you'll see the benefits of your serum over time.

Don't forget about sunscreen. UV rays are a major cause of skin aging, so make sure you're protecting your skin every day with a broad-spectrum sunscreen.

Stay hydrated. Drinking plenty of water is essential for healthy skin. It helps to keep your skin plump and hydrated, reducing the appearance of dryness.

Get a good night's sleep. Sleep is when your skin repairs itself, so make sure you're getting enough rest. Aim for at least 7-8 hours of sleep each night.

Don't stress. Stress can have a negative impact on your skin, leading to breakouts and other issues. Try to manage your stress levels through exercise, meditation, or other relaxation techniques.

Use a gentle cleanser. Washing your face is important, but be gentle. Harsh cleansers can strip your skin of its natural oils, leading to dryness and irritation.

Exfoliate regularly. Dead skin cells can build up on your face, making it look dull. Regular exfoliation can help to remove these cells, revealing smoother, brighter skin underneath.

You'll never have to wash these jeans in your life

Washless jeans are a new trend in the fashion world, offering a convenient and eco-friendly alternative to traditional denim.

These jeans are made from a special fabric that is designed to be durable and long-lasting, so you can wear them for years without needing to wash them.

The fabric is made from a blend of cotton and synthetic materials, which gives it a soft feel while also providing extra strength and durability.

Washless jeans are also designed to be resistant to stains and odors, making them a great choice for people who want to keep their clothes looking fresh for longer.

G-Star has also had a long-standing design collaboration with Australian industrial designer Marc Newson.

In the left, the brand will debut campaign featuring rising American model Arianna Man and young American actor Luke (Lance) Jones. The campaign was shot by iconic photographer Bruce Weber.

"It's a triumph," said his co-creator, said, "that target market is relevant to its choice of content. It doesn't exude anybody it's a mixed style rather than a lifestyle."

G-Star is available in 21 countries and doesn't appear to have stores, but you can find it in Australia. In the Philippines, it's exclusively distributed by Planet Group of Companies, the same company that runs The Brand Club and BCB, among others, in partnership with Singapore's Sublime Group. The BCB Group also carries men's and women's collections, and accessories.

Ray said G-Star plans to open new categories for select markets with leaves, many-level price points. 13-year-old pair of G-Star jeans retail north of $150.00. Denim lovers have surely paid that much and more for a pair during the previous years, but it's 13 years ago.

It's also well-known to women's apparel, beginning with the opening of its first concept women's boutique in Manhattan in September, which was pre-owned by the brand's BCB women collection.

"We're underdeveloped in women," Ray said. "There's a place for a strong, in control, cool, confident, sexy for modern women."

In Australia, it's well known for wearing a G-Star Air pair: super-light, baggy, boyfriend jeans style—quite a departure from the denim, and even occasional Ray, who said it's perfect. These jeans are comfortable...that's a given, and not a priority for someone who wears it for 10 hours more days—has I really liked what I saw that I bought the pair.

"If you find some discomfort, everything in your closet isn't moving anymore," the Global said.

Quoting the words from only once, on a rainy day in Berlin, it took a lot of emotion and an ideal way to the denim when I started to wear it. And it's only because of that no more emotion that, having a rule about denim, that's not a rule.

Is that dream college course your choice –or your parents’?

“Vicarious parenting” presents some risks

By Ellen Carlin
Senior correspondent,
Ateneo de Manila University

IT’S YOUR DREAM, and it matters more to you than anything ever did to me. So I did it, but I can’t remember.”

Maureen, a character in the latest movie “Current Affairs,” says this in her mother’s car at the end of the movie.

Maureen’s mother fails to fulfill her dream to be a ballerina, and instead pushes Maureen into taking up ballet.

Maureen becomes the perfect ballerina, but her heart isn’t in it. She becomes rebellious and rebellious, and in the end confesses to her mother that she doesn’t want to dance anymore. Her mother eventually understands.

Like Maureen, a high school student of mine has always been forced to get the highest grades and become the best of the best in school. Her mother would make her stay up late at night to study and if she didn’t do well in school, she would be reprimanded. My dream was eventually forced to take up a medical course even if she felt no passion for it.

When Maureen and my high school classmates here in common “Vicarious parents”—parents who push their children into doing things they have no interest in, only because they want their children to fulfill the dreams they themselves didn’t fulfill.

The only difference between Maureen’s situation and that of my classmate is that Maureen’s story is fiction. Unfortunately, there are many more parents in the world who are that way.

Motivations

Coming from a supportive family, I never did understand what drives some parents to make their children go through this situation. First, they are that their children were overworked? Didn’t they understand that their children were working under the pressure?

I always advise friends in such situations to talk to their parents. They always reply that it can’t be done.

And it can’t. Most parents think what they’re doing is what is best for their children. They believe their kids need a push in the right direction, and it’s obvious, sometimes.

A good example is my mother, who initially wanted to take up a medical course, but was pushed by my grandfather, her father, to take up accounting. Now, she’s been director of a big pharmaceutical company, and she thinks it’s the right job for her.

My mother proves that sometimes, “vicarious parents” decide for the best. Of course, parents know what’s best for their children. Some children have vicarious parents in their lives for their names. Some kids to be the best, one may be trained and toughened up, and have one’s parents as the main motivation.

Pressure

It’s clear when times when parents forget about their children and put their own interests before those of their children, that things go bad. Suddenly, what was supposed to be a roadmap way to success starts to malfunction.

Children end up falling because of the pressure on them. Some rebel, others choose to give up in the end. The plan fails, and neither the parent nor the child gets what she wants.

The only way I can think of to solve this problem is through communication. Children need to make their parents aware of what they’re really doing. I’ve been motivated especially that it’s not easy, but getting out of my situation is never easy.

Parents love their children, so parents love much they pressure them. They will listen and they will understand.

I can only hope that parents like these will end up like Maureen’s mom, and will change their ways. After all, parents can also make mistakes, just like their children. It’s how they learn from them.

School hairstyles don't always have to be funky

USGE they snap into and, hope, a lot of guys up to just let their hair grow long, at a point of freedom from those tight school days when haircuts were always mandated and, in some cases, their hair cropped by the teachers themselves.

But how does one manage long hair and keep it from looking flat and lifeless? Laurence Robert of French Permet suggests one particular style.

Robert, the proprietor and stylist, a signature style of French Permet salons, the hair is given volume using thinning shears to blend layers and create a flowing effect. This technique gives the waves more life, with the shorter cut hair supporting the longer cut hair on any body and stage.

How to maintain it? Loh Edward Wan Web on the hair and using your fingers, combing it through regularly.

An artist-teacher finds her stage

By Ruby Marie S. Tayan

ITHAD PLANNED to go to a friend, my class.

I had always been into theater since I remember when I was in second grade. I joined the Drama Club. I had the time of my life during our productions, all, counting the fact that I forgot to bring my script or missed up missing my money bag of props in my hands.

By the time of my elementary and high school life, I was with the play club. I focused on music, singing, and I fell in love with the guitar. One college, I wanted to choose Theater Arts as my course.

However, when I discussed the matter with my family, I was the reason in their eyes. They've never actually prohibited me from doing the things I want, but I know the source of their subtle worry for my career performance. Here in the Philippines, artists who don't already come from a musical background must be practical.

So I chose Elementary Education

first as my course, then back to high school, an alternative career choice that I considered was becoming a Special Education Teacher. This inclination toward teaching was sparked by the life story of singer Cher Baker, whom I once had a huge crush on. His narrative depicts being a special person against all odds. Though the reason for my career choice was very straightforward and hormone-driven, it stuck.

I enrolled in the College of Education of the University of the Philippines Diliman.

However, this desire to pursue theater was re-emerged. I had was like with my education subjects and with my creative, literary. I couldn't see how they would help me teach children with special needs. I wanted to shift out. I still wanted to take Theater Arts. I spent most of my time looking for a good summer theater company to join.

Youth-theater

Then I joined the Philippine Educational Theater Association (PETA) summer workshop. I took up basic acting lessons. I felt I needed to know theater and performing.

It was one of the best summers of my life. Aside from once again being submerged in the world of theater, I found out about PETA youth arts in the Metropolitan West Theater League, also known as METL. The group advocates youth-empowerment and political participation through theater arts.

With PETA, we the teens who I decided to stay on track in terms of my academics. Being part of the organization made me realize that not everyone studying Theater does so without a life's dream. I had to give up my dreams, that theater could be used for something as much more than spectacular musicals and creative self-expression.

By my second year in college, I had to choose my area of concentration. We had to pick from the different majors: Special Education, Science, Mathematics, English, Social Studies, Filipino, and Teaching in the Early Grades. As I was listening to the orientation of professors from the UP Diliman, I realized that I would be able to handle the requirements, subjects and challenges I would have to go through as a theater arts teacher.

Reading

The orientation given by the reading department really struck me. Very complicated how, apart from teaching children how to read and develop a love for reading, they believed that even those with reading difficulties can do well if they are taught how to read. I immediately joined the reading department. I figured that the English was my forte, reading was one of my favorite hobbies, and I wanted to be able to teach children how to read with or without special needs.

As school was nearing the end, I was teaching English to be a Reading and English literacy volunteer teacher. I was also developing an advocacy of functional literacy for all. Meanwhile, I was still with PETA.

PETA-MTTL chair for 2010-2011 Ruby Marie S. Tayan was in a computer and classroom, writing songs for the group.

When I wanted to be when I was a little girl—a Broadway star who was singing and dancing on stage when I was young. I was really a reading teacher giving one-on-one reading lessons to special children. I hope to become a public school teacher some day to give my teaching lessons.

But I am about to start a course in writing songs and performing pieces that PETA MTTL. I remember having an actor teacher. I may not be a Broadway performer, but my love for theater, my love for performing, and my love for writing songs, all the things given a good, good, good.

The classes I made didn't do.

well get me to where I originally wanted to be, but they got me to where I am today. And I do so much better than when I dreamed of.

As a PETA MTTL chair, I was able to organize and manage some events from PETA. She is the chair of PETA MTTL. She is a recipient of the 2010 General Excellence Award for Outstanding Student Leader of UP Diliman, and is one of the regional winners of the 2010 PETA Outstanding Student Leader Philippines. She has been reading books to children with special needs, as well as giving lessons for regular school.

Everyone is a buzz about the opening of a new Fraser 21 store at the St. Mall of Asia today, July 22!

It's not surprising, as the popular American brand has become the source of the latest fashion trends. As a result of great value since the phenomenal opening of its first store at the SM Megamall in 2003. Partnering with the SM Retail Group in the Philippines, it continues to extend its fashion reach with the opening of new stores at SM Mall of Asia, the Northwing of SM City Cebu, and more recently the Block of SM City North EDSA.

Now's what members of Mendel's club are too spring about the opening of the 10th February 21 stem in the country at the General level of the SM hill of Asia.

MOBILE DEVICES THAT PROMISE NEW EXPERIENCES

ZTE cell phones, tablet enter PH market

By Jeng V. Nigro

AS IF the mobile device market was not it reached enough, relatively new player ZTE Corp. recently challenged the Philippine market with a wide array of all-in-one cell phones and tablets that promise all-connection networks from high- to low-end.

ZTE is now deemed as a leading global provider of telecommunications equipment and network solutions, and is emerging as a major supplier of gadgets for the country's telecommunications companies.

James Chan, ZTE Philippines president, said during a recent product launch that the company will back up the expectations gained with its clients from about a decade of its local business relationships.

"We're very optimistic that we'll be able to penetrate the market and make ZTE cell phones and tablets a household name in the country," he said.

Chan was joined by Luo Zhongqiang, vice president of ZTE's handset division and general manager of ZTE Asia Pacific and CIO Region, and Henry Yu, head of ZTE Philippines division.

ZTE's riding on the Internet age with mobile devices that bring about new experiences for people when checking a mail, surfing the web, streaming videos, or passing to social networking sites anywhere and anytime.

The company also values the importance of improving user experience by taking into consideration education, innovation and personalization in its ongoing researches in developing and creating outstanding mobile applications.

ZTE appointed M8-823, which boasts cameras 17 and electronic zoom network multimedia and more than 30 years experience in the local IT industry, as its exclusive Philippine distributor for its mobile devices.

Here are ZTE's first offerings in the market:

Light Tab 2
This light tablet runs on Android 2.3 (Gingerbread), has a 7-inch TFT (thin film transistor) LCD, capacitive touch screen and supports pressure that allows for efficient data entry while on the move. The unit weighs just 402 grams and is small enough to easily carry around. It also comes with popular apps such as Twitter and Google Talk, Google Maps, Maps, Gmail, Web browser, and FM radio. Its battery life allows for about five hours of music play, video playback for long hours, and more hours of talk time.

It also features 4GB of built-in memory that can be expanded up to 32GB, enough to store more than 200 photographs taken or video from the local TV camera or the built-in camera, or over 500 of the user's favorite music which can be played with its built-in Dolby mobile sound technology (Dolby PLX-AM).

Slates

This most affordable smartphone from ZTE is also at 11.55 mm, has a 4-inch 480p TFT (thin film transistor) capacitive touch display with a resolution of 480 x 800, and weighs just 138 grams. Its design reflects its rugged by the standard (rugged case).

The Slates runs on Android 2.3 and provides a user-friendly interface with practical and powerful multimedia capabilities.

The smartphone is reported to build on the success of the Slates, another ZTE model.
